First Responder Advocacy Training and Law Enforcement Disability Awareness Trainings

Virtual First Responder Advocacy Training is available for people with disabilities, family members and other disability advocates. This is a two-hour training that provides guidance on how to advocate with first responders, inform them of needs, how to be a partner with first responder agencies, and how to become a resource for those agencies.

- October 20, 1:00 – 3:00 Click for more information including registration

Two Law Enforcement Disability Awareness Trainings are scheduled for November. These are Train-the-Trainer (TtT) trainings for law enforcement officers who will provide the training for their departments/academies. These trainings are POST certified, and officers participating, will earn certification.
